

NEW YORK YACHT CLUB STARTS ON ANNUAL CRUISE

Race From New London to Newport Is First on List of Week's Events.

MANY BOATS COMPETE.

Interest Centres Between Old Defender Vigilant and the New Yawl Sybarita.

(Special to The Evening World.)

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 7.—With a light southwest breeze blowing this morning, getting under way at 8 o'clock. The steam yacht left the harbor early and hovered around the landing of starting line of Sarah's Ledge buoy, from which point the sailing craft began their race to Newport. The whole fleet rounded Race Rock at the western end of Fisher's Island and then headed for Point Judith. The finish is to be at Brenton Reef Light vessel off the mouth of Narragansett Bay. This squadron race, the first of the cruise, is 10 miles. A steady breeze is usually found after rounding Fisher's Island, but Point Judith fogs are famous and more than once the yachts have run into one.

Interest Is Divided.

Before the start this morning the interest in the various racers was well divided, but if any two yachts were watched more closely than the others, they were the old cup defender Vigilant, now flagged as a yawl and owned by William E. Iselin, and the English yawl Sybarita, owned by W. G. Brokaw. They are both ninety-footers and have small jiggers that they are practically sloops. Frank Miller, brother of Capt. L. E. Miller, aboard the Sybarita, and John Barr, nephew of Capt. Charles Barr, aboard the Vigilant, worked like beavers from sunrise on getting the towering racers ready for business. The Vigilant is as well known abroad as in this country, having won the America's cup the year the Vigilant was chosen as defender. Arthur F. Luke raced her the past three years.

Big Turnout of Small Boats.

There was a great turnout of smaller schooners, and all the large sloops of Southampton were on hand. Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt's fifty-seven-foot Herreshoff sloop Aurora and her sister-boat, George M. Pynchon's lastena, sailed against Herreshoff's last fifty-seven-foot creation, the Avenger, which won the Astor Cup last year for her owner, R. W. Emmons, 24, of Boston.

The small thirties were started first and then the other sloops in the order of their size. The schooners were the last to get under way. The time of each boat crossing the line was taken in previous years, and it mattered little whether a boat started a minute after another, as the actual sailing time was recognized in figuring the winners. This year one gun starts will prevail, and a boat is handicapped if it doesn't get away with the flash of the gun.

Despite the early hour of the departure of the fleet for Newport, the shore was thronged with people watching the yachts pass out of the harbor, and a number of excursion boats and launches accompanied them out to the starting point. The big vessels presented a beautiful sight as they headed for sea and gradually became lost from view in the distance. Commodore Vanderbilt's guests aboard his steamer were Dr. Brown, Fleet Surgeon Grenville Kane, Fleet Captain Walter C. Kerr, Ernest E. Lorrillard and Commander J. D. Gerold Kelley.

Big Entry for Long-Distance Sailing Race.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 7.—An announcement was made today that twenty-two boats are entered for the long-distance sailing race from Hamilton, Ontario, to Chaumont, N. Y., which starts Monday. The trophy for the race is the Rudder Cup, offered by Thomas F. Day, of New York. The course is 165 miles, and the race the longest ever held for sailboats on Lake Ontario.

GIANT DOCK FOR OCEAN LINERS.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 7.—It is understood that the White Star line has opened negotiations for the construction of a new marine building, a magnificent structure of receiving the new line's ships, Oceanic and Titanic, intended for the New York service.

The Proof of Results

LAST month The World printed 19,946 separate "Houses, Rooms and Apartments" advertisements—2,946 more than same month last year and 1,951 more than any other New York newspaper. No other New York newspaper grows so many. See next Sunday's World Want Directory.

Gertrude Hoffman in 'Salome' Dance for Sick Babies' Fund

MISS ANNA BOYD

of Besse McCoy, who is conducting the benefit, will receive all communications in this regard at the Herald Square Theatre, and will continue to hear from and enlist volunteers. The benefit will be given at the Herald Square Theatre, which has been donated by the proprietors, S. and L. Schubert and Lew Fields. August 23 is the date.

Aug. 23 the Time and the Herald Square Theatre the Place.

The good work is going on. In addition to Felix and Cairo, the children in the "Mime World," who present the imitable juvenile act, "Jest Kids," and were the first to come to the rescue of the sick babies of the city, via The Evening World's Baby Fund, Gertrude Hoffman, the vaudeville headliner at Hammerstein's Roof Garden, has volunteered to present her "Vision of Salome" act and imitations at the big star benefit shortly to be given. Miss Hoffman, who, besides being a vaudeville star, is also a woman with a woman's sympathies and feelings, is an ardent sociologist. And a movement of this nature brings her quickly to the fore. She deems it little enough for her, or, in fact, any one to do, to offer a little of her time in behalf of infant humanity.

Acknowledgment must also be given to Miss Hoffman's manager, Mr. Gest, and to William Hammerstein, manager of the Victoria Theatre, where Miss Hoffman is now appearing. They have signified their entire willingness to allow the presentation of the act.

Miss Anna Boyd, who has made such a hit in the character of Mrs. Winters, in the "Three Twins," is the third to offer her services. Miss Boyd, apart from her histrionic abilities, is one of the ablest female monologists on the stage. For this benefit she has therefor arranged to have a new monologue written which she will deliver on the evening of the benefit. Those who have seen her as the "Crying Woman," as she is dubbed in the "Three Twins," will now have opportunity to see her as a manufacturer of laughs as well as tears.

Show girls appearing in the various Broadway productions are volunteering to sell programmes in the theatre lobby. Their salesmanship is the best assurance in the world for the guarantee of their disposal.

Mr. C. L. Ensey, press representative

of Besse McCoy, who is conducting the benefit, will receive all communications in this regard at the Herald Square Theatre, and will continue to hear from and enlist volunteers. The benefit will be given at the Herald Square Theatre, which has been donated by the proprietors, S. and L. Schubert and Lew Fields. August 23 is the date.

Aug. 23 the Time and the Herald Square Theatre the Place.

The good work is going on. In addition to Felix and Cairo, the children in the "Mime World," who present the imitable juvenile act, "Jest Kids," and were the first to come to the rescue of the sick babies of the city, via The Evening World's Baby Fund, Gertrude Hoffman, the vaudeville headliner at Hammerstein's Roof Garden, has volunteered to present her "Vision of Salome" act and imitations at the big star benefit shortly to be given. Miss Hoffman, who, besides being a vaudeville star, is also a woman with a woman's sympathies and feelings, is an ardent sociologist. And a movement of this nature brings her quickly to the fore. She deems it little enough for her, or, in fact, any one to do, to offer a little of her time in behalf of infant humanity.

Acknowledgment must also be given to Miss Hoffman's manager, Mr. Gest, and to William Hammerstein, manager of the Victoria Theatre, where Miss Hoffman is now appearing. They have signified their entire willingness to allow the presentation of the act.

Miss Anna Boyd, who has made such a hit in the character of Mrs. Winters, in the "Three Twins," is the third to offer her services. Miss Boyd, apart from her histrionic abilities, is one of the ablest female monologists on the stage. For this benefit she has therefor arranged to have a new monologue written which she will deliver on the evening of the benefit. Those who have seen her as the "Crying Woman," as she is dubbed in the "Three Twins," will now have opportunity to see her as a manufacturer of laughs as well as tears.

Show girls appearing in the various Broadway productions are volunteering to sell programmes in the theatre lobby. Their salesmanship is the best assurance in the world for the guarantee of their disposal.

Mr. C. L. Ensey, press representative

of Besse McCoy, who is conducting the benefit, will receive all communications in this regard at the Herald Square Theatre, and will continue to hear from and enlist volunteers. The benefit will be given at the Herald Square Theatre, which has been donated by the proprietors, S. and L. Schubert and Lew Fields. August 23 is the date.

Aug. 23 the Time and the Herald Square Theatre the Place.

The good work is going on. In addition to Felix and Cairo, the children in the "Mime World," who present the imitable juvenile act, "Jest Kids," and were the first to come to the rescue of the sick babies of the city, via The Evening World's Baby Fund, Gertrude Hoffman, the vaudeville headliner at Hammerstein's Roof Garden, has volunteered to present her "Vision of Salome" act and imitations at the big star benefit shortly to be given. Miss Hoffman, who, besides being a vaudeville star, is also a woman with a woman's sympathies and feelings, is an ardent sociologist. And a movement of this nature brings her quickly to the fore. She deems it little enough for her, or, in fact, any one to do, to offer a little of her time in behalf of infant humanity.

Acknowledgment must also be given to Miss Hoffman's manager, Mr. Gest, and to William Hammerstein, manager of the Victoria Theatre, where Miss Hoffman is now appearing. They have signified their entire willingness to allow the presentation of the act.

Miss Anna Boyd, who has made such a hit in the character of Mrs. Winters, in the "Three Twins," is the third to offer her services. Miss Boyd, apart from her histrionic abilities, is one of the ablest female monologists on the stage. For this benefit she has therefor arranged to have a new monologue written which she will deliver on the evening of the benefit. Those who have seen her as the "Crying Woman," as she is dubbed in the "Three Twins," will now have opportunity to see her as a manufacturer of laughs as well as tears.

Show girls appearing in the various Broadway productions are volunteering to sell programmes in the theatre lobby. Their salesmanship is the best assurance in the world for the guarantee of their disposal.

Mr. C. L. Ensey, press representative

of Besse McCoy, who is conducting the benefit, will receive all communications in this regard at the Herald Square Theatre, and will continue to hear from and enlist volunteers. The benefit will be given at the Herald Square Theatre, which has been donated by the proprietors, S. and L. Schubert and Lew Fields. August 23 is the date.

Aug. 23 the Time and the Herald Square Theatre the Place.

The good work is going on. In addition to Felix and Cairo, the children in the "Mime World," who present the imitable juvenile act, "Jest Kids," and were the first to come to the rescue of the sick babies of the city, via The Evening World's Baby Fund, Gertrude Hoffman, the vaudeville headliner at Hammerstein's Roof Garden, has volunteered to present her "Vision of Salome" act and imitations at the big star benefit shortly to be given. Miss Hoffman, who, besides being a vaudeville star, is also a woman with a woman's sympathies and feelings, is an ardent sociologist. And a movement of this nature brings her quickly to the fore. She deems it little enough for her, or, in fact, any one to do, to offer a little of her time in behalf of infant humanity.

Acknowledgment must also be given to Miss Hoffman's manager, Mr. Gest, and to William Hammerstein, manager of the Victoria Theatre, where Miss Hoffman is now appearing. They have signified their entire willingness to allow the presentation of the act.

COURT HOLDS UP MILLIONAIRE'S TRIP

State Factory Inspector's Little Complaint Keeps Levy From Sailing.

Jefferson M. Levy, the wealthy real estate operator, owner of many pieces of property in the central part of this city and of Monticello, the home in Virginia of Thomas Jefferson, surrendered himself in the Centre Street Court this afternoon.

Mr. Levy said he had heard that Charles Miller, a State Factory Inspector, had complained that he had failed to provide proper sanitary arrangements in a building owned by him at No. 41 Leonard street. This building is occupied by the National Novelty Clothing Company and the Atlas Shirt Factory, both of which employ scores of workers.

Mr. Levy said he was thirty-seven years old and gave his address as No. 30 East Thirty-fourth street. He was married in the custody of his counsel, Edward Carmel, until Friday.

"This will prevent my sailing for Europe tomorrow, will it not?" Levy asked, Magistrate Kernohan.

"It certainly will," answered the Magistrate. "I'll hold Mr. Carmel strictly responsible for your appearance."

CHILD FELL FROM WINDOW.

While his mother was in another room today two-year-old Salvatore Mandella, living on the second floor of No. 28 Hamilton street, fell from the front bedroom window to the sidewalk, fracturing his skull. He was taken to St. Gregory's Hospital in a serious condition.

Does It Do The Work?

Soap that does is cheap. Soap that does not, is dear.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap DOES THE WORK.

A five cent cake of P. & G. Naphtha Soap will last longer and do more work than two bars of ordinary laundry soap, costing, say, 3 1/2 cents each; or three bars of cheap soap costing 2 1/2 cents apiece.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is the cheapest soap you can buy—because it is the best value.

It saves time; and time is money.

It saves labor; and labor is worth money.

It saves clothes; and clothes cost money.

The naphtha in it LOOSENS the dirt; the soap CLEANSSES.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is so much better than any other laundry soap that it is worth your while to go ten blocks out of your way to get it.

But it is not necessary to do that—it is almost a certainty that your grocer sells it.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap 5 cents a cake.

PROCTER & GAMBLE P&G NAPHTHA SOAP

WIFE YAWNED HER JAW OUT OF PLACE

"Bill" Had to Get Ambulance Doctor to Set It, So Was Late to Work.

Good natured "Bill" Heines, of No. 41 East One Hundred and Thirty-seventh street, missed his breakfast this morning and was late reporting on his job in the bargain, but there was a reason.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

"Well, it's a good excuse for my being late," said Mr. Heines afterward.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

Heines couldn't close her face then—the inferior maxillary having been dislocated. She did what looked like a perpetual stare when she passed into the presence of her husband. He knew what to do. He called an ambulance and Dr. Kent, of Lincoln Hospital, put the jaw back in place.

FRAZIN & OPPENHEIM
Southwest Corner 6th Ave. & 18th St.

OPEN ALL DAY SATURDAY.

Clearing Sale of 15,000 Pairs
Oxford Ties, Pumps and Gibson Ties
Formerly Sold at $2.50 & $3.00, now
Tan Calfskin, Patent $1.00 a pair
Coltskin and Black Kidskin, $1 a pair
$1 and Welled Soles Sizes 2 1/2 to 8

Clearing Sale of 5,000 Pairs
Children's Ankle Ties, $1.00 a pair
Children's Oxfords, $1.00 a pair
Children's Shoes, $1.00 a pair
White Canvas, Patent $1.00 a pair
Colt, Dark Tan, Size 2 1/2 to 8

Misses' Patent Coltskin Sailor Ties $1.00 a pair
Misses' Gunne' at Cal' Oxford Ties $1.00 a pair
Misses' Vici Kidskin Oxford Ties $1.00 a pair
Misses' White Canvas Oxfords $1.00 a pair
Sizes 8 1/2 to 2; values up to $2.00..... $1.00 a pair

Dr. Keller's Comfort $3 $1.95
Oxfords, Shoes & Julies, For Nurses, Teachers, Saleswomen, or Any Who Are Much on Their Feet
Made of Imported Kid and Black French Vici.
Pneumatic Rubber Heels
Hand-sewn, Flexible Leather Soles, very dressy and comfortable Sizes 3 to 8; widths D to EEE.
at $1.95 a pair

$3 & $3.50 Trademarked Shoes & Oxfords
Packard and All-America Makes
Sample Lots, Surplus Stocks and Factory Rejects in All Sizes at $1.50 a pair
Boys' Shoes and Oxfords
Tan calf in and black vici kidskin, welled soles; sizes 1 to 12; $1.50 and $2.00 values, a pair,..... $1.50 a pair
A Selection of Twenty Newest Shapes
In Tan Calfskin, Patent Coltskin and Kid skin.
Men's aching Shoes
White duck, white rubber soles, $1.00 grades; sizes 8 1/2 to 11, 69c
FRAZIN & OPPENHEIM, 6th Ave. & 18th St.

FRAZIN & OPPENHEIM
Southwest Corner 6th Ave. & 18th St.

OPEN ALL DAY SATURDAY.

Clearance Sale of Our Own
Jumper Dresses
Formerly Sold at $1, $1.50 and $2
These dresses were such sensational values for the prices at which they were originally advertised that thousands were sold each day.
Now you can have your choice of all we have left at 75¢

The First Early Fall Hat
Just the hat for between seasons; made in plain or combination colors, such as white, black, brown or tan, trimmed with bows and ribbons of silk and fancy feathers, on five different crown shapes. Your choice
$1.48

Hosiery &